

ROTORUA

Rotorua's Māori heritage and unique geothermal landscape make it one of the most memorable conference and event locations in the world. One of New Zealand's premier tourist spots, its geysers and thermal spas, lakes and forests, adrenaline activities, and Māori cultural experiences are a major drawcard for visitors seeking adventure and rejuvenation. With a wide selection of venues and thousands of rooms in everything from luxury lodges to accessible central city hotels, Rotorua is hard to beat for business event organisers.

ACCESS

Rotorua Airport is served by Air New Zealand and is a gateway to the central North Island regions. It receives regular daily flights from Auckland, Wellington, and Christchurch. Visitors flying directly to Rotorua will land at Rotorua Airport, 8 km drive from the centre of the city. Most will then travel the short distance into Rotorua by taxi or coach, or, for something a little different, stretch limousines or other prestige cars can be arranged.

VENUES

Rotorua has a variety of flexible meeting and event venues that make the most of the district's stunning natural environment, from purpose-built venues on the edge of Lake Rotorua, to mountaintop options accessible by gondola. Guests can enjoy a unique, open-air setting surrounded by Redwood trees, or a function space with views across a dramatic landscape of steam and geysers.

The city's largest venue is the modern Energy Events Centre. Located on the edge of Lake Rotorua within the manicured and picturesque Government Gardens, the large 8,255 sqm centre incorporates 10 separate spaces ideal for conferences, exhibitions, and award dinners. The venue can accommodate 2,600 delegates for a seated banquet, or 4,000 people theatre-style. Skyline Rotorua, perched on top of Mount Ngongotahā, can accommodate up to 350 guests for a banquet dinner or 1,000 guests for a cocktail function. At the Sir Howard Morrison Centre, the Sir Owen Glenn Theatre offers a modern tiered theatre for 950 people.

Many of Rotorua's quality 4.5-star hotels can provide conference space for up to 500 delegates and can cater to a diverse range of event configurations.

ACCOMMODATION

With more than 4,000 rooms and 14,000 beds on offer in the wider region, it's easy for business and incentive travellers to find accommodation to suit their tastes in Rotorua.
